

NANCY WYNNE ATTENDS THE OPERA AND CHATS ABOUT MANY THINGS

Large Bazaar for St. Luke's Hospital in Tokio, Which Will Be Held at Ritz-Carlton This Afternoon and Evening—Various Other Affairs

OF COURSE we are all looking forward to the bazaar, auction and cabaret show, which will be held tonight at the Ritz-Carlton. The kiddies are to have a great time at a fashion show, when we are to vote for the best-dressed ones. It will be really very cute, I think, and I am curious to know who will take part in it as the mothers have so far refused to reveal the identity of the winners.

But the cabaret in the evening will be the greatest fun, especially the ballet in which Virginia Harrison Smith, Alva Sergeant and various others will appear.

The cabaret will be preceded by an auction sale at 9 o'clock sharp, to dispose of all the articles left from the sale, and I guess there will be some bargains! So we had better all be on time.

An effort is being made to have a nationwide campaign for the raising of funds for the hospital, as the Emperor of Japan has pledged a large sum of money if this country can raise the rest.

Mr. Charles Rodman Pancoast, of Germantown, and Dr. William H. Jeffreys left yesterday for Washington to address a large meeting, at which the President and his Cabinet were present, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, in the interests of the hospital.

The committee for today's affair, under the chairmanship of Miss Rose Dolan, is working indefatigably, and all day yesterday were busily engaged adding last touches to the already lovely decorations.

The sale of tickets has been very great and many reservations have been made for dinner before the auction sale. The others on the committee beside Rose Dolan are Sydney Ellis, Harriet Frazier, Eleanor Hopkins, who seems to be in every charity going; Adeline Pepper, Alva Sergeant, Mary Alice Clay, Bessie Cheston, Eleanor Arnett, Kitty Brinton, Eleanor Brock, Esther Howell, Ethel Shields, Marjory Taylor, Miss Gertrude Ely, Miss Anne Hubbard, Mrs. Francis McIlhenry, Mrs. Lin Taylor and Mrs. Franklin Pepper.

Then among those who will run the tables and different booths will be Mrs. Aleck Brown, Kitty Brinton, Mrs. Gardner Cassatt, Lois Cassatt, Dorothy Diston, Mrs. Charlie Harrison, Jr., Mrs. Clarrie Dolan, Gertrude Heckscher, Cecile Howell, Elizabeth Henry, Eugenia Law, Gwen Martin, Mrs. Charlie Munn, Mrs. Paul Mills, Mrs. Hal Sands, Mrs. Francis Lewis, Ed, and Mrs. Tom Reath.

There is no doubt about it, the opera is a brilliant affair from all points of view. Last night's performance being new to Philadelphia, the audience really watched the proceedings more than it looked at its fellow members. And from the ripples of laughter over the great house, but for the wonderful Strauss music and the exquisite waltzes, which made me want to get right up and dance, the Rosenkavalier was equal to a vaudeville for comedy. It was a beautiful performance in every sense.

The absence of Mr. and Mrs. Stotesbury from their box, which was occupied by Mrs. Henry Brinton Cox, Mrs. Henry Cadwalader Chapman and Mrs. Theodore Cramp, made no special mecca toward which the occupants of the grand tier usually congregate, but every box was crowded, and such gowns and such beautiful women are hard to find.

Mrs. Paul Denckla Mills was looking very charming, and a recent bride to appear for the first time was Mrs. Jack Frazier, who was Mary Tighman from the South, and is very pretty. As usual, Mrs. Charlie Wright was wonderfully gowned and looked very handsome. She had a remarkable head-dress of black tulle bows, which were attached to the head by a jewel.

A great many went down to the Ritz after the performance for the supper-dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Scott gave a supper party for Mr. and Mrs. George McFadden, Jr.; Major Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Brock and Craig Biddle.

Mr. and Mrs. Frazier Harrison entertained Mr. and Mrs. J. Kearley Mitchell, Ed; Mr. and Mrs. William Elkins and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mann.

Mr. and Mrs. Emlien Hare and Mr. Carl Feldman were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jeffords.

A very interesting party included Mr. and Mrs. Charlton Yarnall and their guests, Mr. Howard C. Clark, Ed; Miss McKim, Mrs. William J. Clothier and Mr. Chickering.

Mr. and Mrs. Gross and Dr. and Mrs. William Ashton had a small party. Mrs. Francis I. Gowen entertained "Hope" and "Tony" Cromwell and a number of out-of-town guests.

Others who gave supper parties were Captain Edward Cassatt, Morris Clothier, Mrs. H. L. Fountain and Mr. A. G. B. Steele.

The first meeting of Mrs. Hurlbut's theatre club will take place this evening. The club, which was organized two seasons ago, has been such a success that its members have been eager to subscribe again this season and it has grown to rather large proportions. Following the performance a number of motors convey the members to the Bellevue-Stratford, where a supper dance is given. Mrs. Hurlbut has been confined to her home, 2105 Spruce street, for several days with grippe, but hopes to be able to make her appearance this evening.

The subsequent meetings will be held on January 24 and March 6.

John Meers has gone to Washington to live, and he surely had "some" farewell party. It began with the Hutchinson's dance on Friday night, which lasted until about 5:30, then all the girls in the party went home, and most of the men. John, however, kept about 30 men for breakfast at 7:30, and their farewells to him were most touching. It was a sight for sore eyes to see the poor dears leaving the hotel to go to work in their dress-suits. Of course, they all went to Katharine Kremer Page's wedding and then to the Ritz, and, will you believe it, actually some of those youths went to the Supper Club on various parties and danced there until Sunday morning. It was a case of nearly 36 hours steady work. How can they do it and live? NANCY WYNNE.

Mrs. Alice Mumford Roberts, the well-known portrait painter, confided today, despite that it is as yet unofficially announced, her engagement to Robert Stewart Culin, a well-known archaeologist, formerly a director of the Archaeological Museum of the University of Pennsylvania and at present curator of ethnology at the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Mrs. Roberts is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph P. Mumford, the publicist, and studied art in France and Spain, completing her instructions in portrait painting under Whistler. She has often exhibited her work at the Pennsylvania Academy, and exhibitions in other cities throughout the United States.

Mrs. Roberts has been a widow for four years, her husband, Jacob Clarence Roberts, having been an author and instructor in the Manual Training School of this city. She resides with her young daughter, Penelope, and her mother at 24 South 7th street, an old Philadelphia residence noted for its Colonial architecture.

Mr. Culin is a descendant of the Culin family who settled in New Sweden, Pa., in 1693. He was born in Philadelphia, and is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He has an international reputation upon anthropological matters, and is well known as an author of works bearing upon this subject, having as well visited every corner of the globe in the interests of his profession.

No date as to the wedding has as yet been announced.

"JOURNEY OF JOY" IS GREAT SUCCESS

Northern Home for Friendless Children Will Be Greatly Aided by Dual Performance of Amateur Play

The first performance of the long-heralded "Journey of Joy," a musical extravaganza for the benefit of the Northern Home for Friendless Children, was given with great success last night in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford before a goodly sized audience composed of those interested in the welfare of the home and their friends. The production, which was staged by Mr. Charles Leon Downing, contains a large and exceptionally good cast and comprises quite favorably with many of the reigning musical comedies of the season. The former Mask and Wig's man's training is apparent in the dancing choruses, which would do credit to many professional productions, and from the instant the curtains parted and a weirdly garbed chorus, "The Winged Mysteria," danced to the strains of Greg's music, until the final number, "Clon et Clon," danced by five men and five girls in scarlet and white satin costumes, the affair went with a swing and verve quite foreign to most amateur productions. The costuming was smart in the extreme and fairly breathed of the Bal Tabarin.

A number of interesting specialties were introduced during the course of the evening. The delightful singing of Miss Kathryn Mortimore, whose sister, Miss Dorothy Mortimore, furnished the violin obbligato, was perhaps the most noteworthy, although almost equally good were the quaint little Scotch songs of Miss Margaretta Blapham, the grotesque pas de deux introduced by Miss Frances McCann and Mr. Henry Nightingale, and the graceful dances executed by Miss Edwina Malpass and Mr. E. Edwood Carpenter and Miss Helen Sanders with Mr. Norris E. Henderson, Jr. Mr. Rathart also gave one of his inimitable interpretations of Al Jolson.

The cast of characters follows: Joy (Mrs. Richards), Miss Helen Richardson; Clon (Mrs. Richards), Miss Kathryn Stevens; Mysteria (Mrs. Richards), Miss Frances McCann; Beauty (Mrs. Richards), Miss Edwina Malpass; Fashion (Mrs. Richards), Miss Margaret May; Fairy (Mrs. Richards), Miss Dorothy Henderson; Youth (Mrs. Richards), Mr. Norris E.
